Star of the Week: Excellence Beyond Academics

At our school, excellence is not measured by academic achievement alone but also by the values and habits that shape responsible, compassionate, and disciplined individuals. With this vision, we proudly celebrate "Star of the Week", a weekly recognition that honours the class demonstrating exemplary conduct and collective responsibility.

The award is presented in two categories—Primary (Grades 1–5) and Secondary (Grades 6–10)—encouraging every class to strive for excellence throughout the week.

The Star of the Week Trophy was proudly awarded to Class 1A and Class 6B for their commendable discipline, responsibility, cleanliness, and consistent efforts. The following week, the trophy was earned by Class 3D and Class 7B, reflecting their collective commitment to excellence. The last week star class trophy was bagged by the classes 4C and 9A.The winning classes are selected based on their consistent display of discipline, timely completion of classwork and homework, classroom cleanliness, maintaining silence and decorum, and taking responsibility for shared spaces and daily tasks.

The Star of the Week initiative has inspired a healthy spirit of motivation and cooperation among students. It encourages every child to understand that small, consistent actions—whether keeping the classroom tidy, completing assignments on time, or showing respect for others—contribute to creating a positive and enriching school culture.

Handcrafted Magazines: Explore, Learn Share and Celebrate

Creativity found its voice as the students of Class 9 and 10 unveiled their beautifully handcrafted magazines, transforming knowledge into an engaging and inspiring experience for younger learners. Designed with imagination, dedication, and purpose, these magazines reflected not only academic understanding but also the students' artistic flair and collaborative spirit.

Working together as a team, the students carefully researched, wrote, illustrated, and designed each page, presenting concepts in vibrant and creative ways that were both informative and enjoyable. Every magazine stood as a testament to their originality, teamwork, and commitment to making learning meaningful for others.

More than a creative project, the initiative embodied the essence of collaborative learning, where ideas were exchanged, responsibilities were shared, and every student's unique talent contributed to a collective masterpiece. By creating resources for their juniors, the students embraced the role of mentors, fostering a culture of peer learning and knowledge sharing within the school community. The handcrafted magazines were not merely a showcase of artistic talent; they celebrated innovation, communication, and the joy of learning together. They reminded us that education becomes truly impactful when knowledge is shared, creativity is encouraged, and collaboration transforms ideas into inspiration.

ITC WOW Initiative: Turning Pages into Possibilities

Reuse. Recycle. Reduce — a simple message with a powerful impact!

As part of an eco-friendly initiative by the ITC Group, our school encouraged students to bring their old and unused books and exchange them for new stationery. This thoughtful initiative transformed something that might otherwise be discarded into something useful once again.

The initiative helped students understand that every book reused means fewer resources wasted and fewer trees cut down. By choosing to reuse and recycle paper, we can reduce waste, conserve natural resources and contribute towards protecting our precious forests.

Through this initiative, we successfully collected 6 tons (6,000 kg) of waste paper-an outstanding collective effort that has effectively saved 120 trees and made a direct, measurable contribution to environmental sustainability.

More than just an exchange, the initiative is about responsible living—giving old books a new purpose while giving young minds a greener perspective for a cleaner, greener and more sustainable future.

A book reused is a tree preserved!

Yoga Competition – Grace in Every Pose, Strength in Every Move

Students across various grades enthusiastically participated in the class wise Yoga Competition, showcasing their talent, flexibility, balance, and creativity through a variety of yoga poses. The event witnessed immense enthusiasm and healthy competition as students demonstrated their skills with confidence and grace.
